

GREEN 101

April 29, 2008 | Towers at William Square | 8:00-11:30am

Going GREEN? Are you confused by all the hype, all the information, all the websites, all the talk, all the questions? Are you wondering how to put everything into perspective?

Dallas BOMA has the answers. Join us for GREEN 101 – this introductory seminar will map out the landscape, identifying the key terms and programs and introduce you to all the players. We will cover BOMA International’s 7-Point challenge that Dallas BOMA accepted earlier this year. If LEED certification is your goal, we will review the prerequisites and where to find more information and training. These topics are the foundation of a sustainable Environmental Stewardship program.

When you walk out of this seminar you will have a confidence about working in a GREEN world, finding information, answering questions and keeping up with all the talk.

This GOING GREEN Seminar session is Tuesday, April 29 from 8:00-11:30am at The Towers at Williams Square (5221 N. O’Connor Blvd.) located in Irving. Registration and breakfast is from 7:30-8:00am. The seminar will begin promptly at 8:00am.

These seminars are pending approval from the Texas Real Estate Commission for MCE credit (Provider #0139); and are approved for Continuing Professional Development Points for individuals with the RPA, FMA and/or SMA designation(s).
